

CH-19 Safety Training Homework Answers

01

What is one of the benefits of using a quiz at the end of a safety training lesson?

- A. A quiz can be written to ensure everyone answers all questions correctly and documents that the lesson objectives are met.
- B. A quiz can provide another learning opportunity.
- C. A quiz can inspire participants to learn more about the subject.
- D. A quiz can document improved attitudes of participants.

02

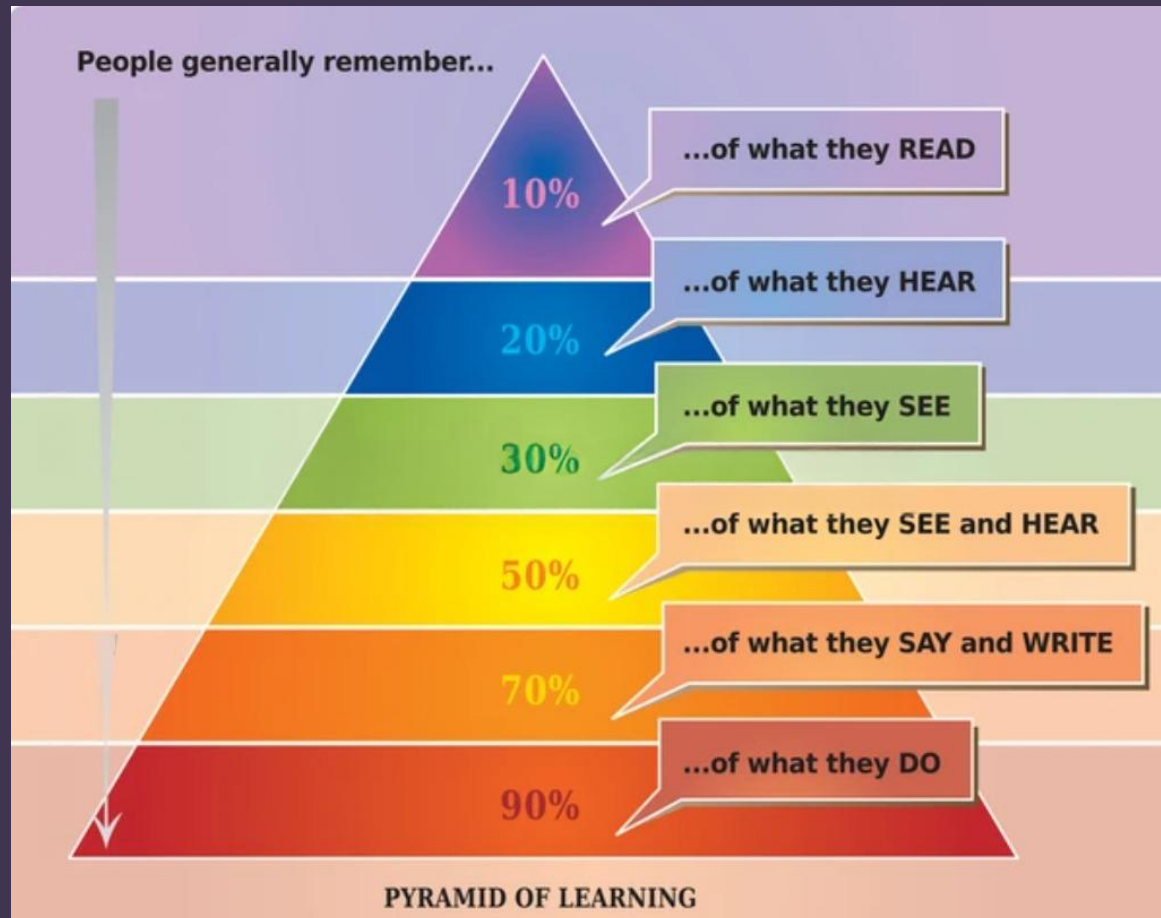

Select the best written training objective below

- A. At the end of this training, participants will want to review respiratory protection requirements before painting.
- B. At the end of this training, participants will know about respirators.
- C. At the end of this training, participants will be able to determine proper respiratory protection for all painting applications.
- D. At the end of this lesson, participants will have watched a movie.

03

People are least likely to remember:

- A. What they hear
- B. What they say
- C. What they practice
- D. What they read

04

In which of the following would a non-training solution be preferred over a training solution?

- A. An employee is unfamiliar with the work process.
- B. An employee works in an area with unguarded machinery
- C. An employee is unfamiliar with how to use equipment.
- D. An employee performed a task incorrectly.

05

Your company has convened an "all-hands" company meeting. Mr. John Boss, the CEO, will be delivering the "state-of-the-company" address. Nearly 400 employees are expected to attend. What would be the best presentation technique for this scenario?

- A. Mostly lecture sprinkled liberally with business-related graphs
- B. Mostly lecture with no visual aids
- C. Some lecture, some high-level graphs, some multimedia presentations with video and audio
- D. Mostly multimedia video and audio with minimal input from Mr. Boss

06

When performing a training needs analysis, what is the fundamental question that a safety professional must ask?

- A. Will this organization's management commit to implementing this training?
- B. Will this organization's employees implement that which they learn during training?
- C. Will this organization accept the learning objectives?
- D. Will training resolve this organization's needs?

07

What is used to collect information from safety training attendees to ensure you provide the right training?

- A. Lost time incident data
- B. Questionnaires
- C. Performance review data
- D. Supervisory input documents

08

Which statement is always true related to computer-based training (CBT) in the modern work environment?

- A. CBT augments professional and managerial training but is generally unsuitable for line employee training
- B. CBT augments line employee and line supervisory training but is generally unsuitable for professional and managerial training
- C. CBT augments all forms of training due to its low cost and flexibility
- D. A needs analysis must be conducted before any decision to use CBT is made

09

You are developing a new training program for chemical safety. In the Analysis phase of the ADDIE model, you gathered information on accidents caused by chemical mishandling. What is the next step according to the ADDIE model?

- A. Design the training program, focusing on safe handling and emergency procedures.
- B. Deliver the training to a small group to test its effectiveness.
- C. Evaluate the feedback from past training sessions on similar topics.
- D. Document the training process for reporting purposes.

10

You are conducting a safety training session on handling hazardous materials. You plan to measure the training's impact through assessments.

What is the most effective way to use pre-tests and post-tests in this scenario?

- A. Administer both tests after the training to compare scores with industry standards.
- B. Administer a pre-test to determine prior knowledge and a post-test to assess knowledge gained.
- C. Use only a post-test to minimize testing time and focus on training content.
- D. Skip pre-tests, as they might demotivate learners who score poorly before the training.