

CH-30 Material
Handling
Homework Answers

01

You are asked to reduce the emissions of gasoline-powered forklifts used in a warehouse.

What is your best option given the fact that you cannot afford to purchase electrically powered trucks?

- A. Convert the existing forklifts to diesel-power
- B. Convert the existing forklifts to LP-gas-power
- C. Provide warehouse employees with air-purifying respirators
- D. Increase the warehouse dilution ventilation

02

Overexertion injuries associated with manual materials handling jobs account for at least _____ of all occupational injuries:

A. 15%

B. 20%

C. 25%

D. 30%

03

How much an employee can safely lift depends least on:

A. Body size

B. Frequency

C. Body position

D. Distance

04

Manual materials handling tasks can be designed to avoid injuries. Modifications to the object to be handled may include all of the following EXCEPT:

- A. Designing objects so the arms can be easily extended around it
- B. Installing handles or hand holds wherever possible
- C. Avoiding lopsided weights and loose contents
- D. Using hoists or other lift assists when object weight is excessive

05

Of the following, which is the best source of power for forklifts used in a warehouse operation?

A. Electric

B. LPG

C. Gasoline

D. Either B or C

06

The room designed to recharge and replace acid batteries for forklifts requires the following EXCEPT:

- A. Eyewash/safety shower
- B. Ventilation
- C. Facilities to neutralize electrolytes
- D. Blow-out construction

07

Manual materials handling injuries include all of the following EXCEPT:

- A. Musculoskeletal disorders
- B. Carpal tunnel syndrome
- C. Crushing of hands and fingers
- D. Dropping of objects on feet/toes

08

In manual materials handling, methods for eliminating the need to bend include all of the following EXCEPT:

- A. Using lift tables, work dispensers, and other mechanical aids
- B. Raising the work level to an appropriate height
- C. Providing materials and tools in front of the worker
- D. Lowering the worker